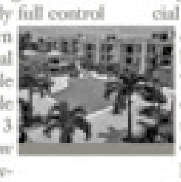
Sunni militants fighting under the banner of Al Qaeda appeared to make gains across Anbar Province on Saturday, using snipers and rocket-propelled grenades in heavy street fighting as they secured nearly full control of Falluja and captured the strategic town Karma. Government forces and the tribal militias fighting with them seemed unable to resist the militants advances. My humble words for my 71st birthday celebration on 3 Kings Day. i've been asked many times how i celebrate my birthday. Since i celebrate every day i wake up alive that for me is the best way i can answer the question regarding the celebration of my birthday. At my age i believe i've lived much longer than i had expected to live. And that's an excellent reason why i should celebrate every day i wake up, look up at the sky to see if there are stars or the moon out and feel the palpitation of my heart to confirm that i'm alive for real. The reaction to my allergies can make me aware that i'm alive, but that's something i don't really like to use because it can affect my desire to celebrate life.



i believe we should celebrate every day just for having awoken. When i've this idea with people they have question it. My response is that we should pay attention to the relativity of the human destiny. Because it doesn't matter how miserable one feels and how bad one thinks conditions are, the fact remains one is alive. And when one feels miserable all one has to do is to look around and one will see another person in worse conditions doing what might look impossible and facing the challenge without complaining. If one feels miserable because he or she lost an eye the person he or she sees dealing with the challenge that seems impossible is totally blind. That's why we should always take into consideration the relativity of the human destiny. When we start a new year or the calendar is telling us a new year has started we should look at it as a chance to complete what we have not been able to accomplish in the past. When we face a crisis we should look at it as an opportunity to deal with it and to find a solution. It doesn't matter where we are. For example, when the earthquake devastated Mexico City and there was a major crisis we came up with the idea to raise funds from the prison population in order to give a hand to the victims of the earthquake. We talked to the staff and the idea was accepted. We were allowed to set up tables and get the prisoners to sign a form to have the money discounted from their funds. Within two hours we had raised over five thousand dollars. At first we had no idea how to help the victims. But after discussing the issue we were able to come up with a solution. We were able to do what for others seemed impossible. Celebrate life and not the commodification of it. We can share and enjoy the act of and make it meaningful. We can celebrate any such moment and give meaning to our daily life and make it a real important cultural event. Life is an act of giving and receiving. But when the sharing of gifts is commodified it becomes another act of consumerism and our culture is the one that suffers its consequences. Any moment we celebrate our culture we are helping to pass it on to future generations and to strengthened it. But if we allow it to become an act of consumerism we are contributing to its vulgarization and its demise. Let's celebrate 3 pass it on to future generations and to strengthened it. But if we allow it to become an act of consumerism we are contributing to its vulgarization and its demise. Let's celebrate 3 Kings Day and enjoy it to the utmost. If we believe a better and more just world is possible, we don't have to go to a far away place in the globe to make our contribution to such a lofty cause. We can do it right where we live. But we have to be willing to roll up our sleeves and do the hard work. Words are important, but it's the work that bears fruits. And if we learn one lesson in life that's worthwhile holding on and passing it on is that the only thing that's impossible is that that doesn't get done. It was Madeba who said that any problem us humans create have a solution. If there is a poverty problem it can be solved if we tackle it. Let's emulate Madeba's example. Let's dare to struggle. let's dare to win. Talk the talk and walk the walk. i leave you with a big hug with much love. Take care, abrazos, Oscar Lopez Rivera Anarchism is part of a broader range of libertarian socialist thought and action that includes the practical achievements of revolutionary Spain in 1936; reaches further to worker-owned enterprises spreading today in the American rust belt, in northern Mexico, in Egypt, and many other countries, most extensively in the Basque country in Spain; and encompasses the many cooperative movements around the world and a good part of feminist and civil and human rights initiatives. This broad tendency in human development seeks to identify structures of hierarchy, authority and domination that constrain human development, and then subject them to a very reasonable challenge: Justify yourself. A former Columbia, Illinois resident pled guilty on January 10, 2014, to a two-count indictment charging him, in count one, with receipt of visual depictions of minors engaged in sexually explicit conduct, in violation of Title 18, United States Code, Section 2252(a)(2); and, in count two, with possession of visual depictions of minors engaged in sexually explicit conduct, in violation of Title 18, United States Code, Section 2252(a)(4)(B), the United States Attorney for the Southern District of Illinois, Stephen R. Wigginton, announced today. Neil E. Purdy, 29, formerly of Columbia, Illinois, faces a term of imprisonment of not less than five but not more than 20 years, a fine up to $250,000, and a term of supervised release of five years to life on count one; and a term of imprisonment of not more than 10 years, a fine up to $250,000, and a term of supervised release of five years to life on count two. In addition, upon his release from prison, Purdy must register as a sex offender. Sentencing is scheduled for May 16, 2014, in East St. Louis, Illinois. Purdy has been held without bond since his initial appearance on April 26, 2013.

The investigation began on February 7, 2012, when an individual contacted the Columbia Police Department to report that the defendant molested his/her 14-year-old child. He/she also told the Columbia police that he/she saw the defendant "Google" the phrase, "where can I find really young porn." He/she said that, when he/she asked the defendant, "How long have you had this little problem?" Purdy responded, "About three years." On February 16, 2012, Purdy, a member of the U.S. Navy Reserve with top secret clearance, admitted to Columbia the number of hunger strikers in Guantanamo has doubled since the final set of official figures was released by the US authorities on December 2 2013. The report, compiled by human rights charity Reprieve, uses prisoner testimony to reveal that 33 men detained in Guantanamo are on hunger strike, with 16 being force fed. The Joint Task Force at Guantanamo, which runs the prison, announced in December of 2013 that they would no longer release official figures of those on hunger strike because they did not want to 'further their protests'. The report also reveals that authorities at the prison are punishing those on hunger strike by sending them to the strictest of the camps, "Camp V Echo". One detainee described his experiences there to his lawyer at Reprieve: "My cell in the dreadful Camp V Echo is constructed in a strange manner. It is designed to torture the person who is held there. All the surfaces made of steel. The bed is steel. The walls are steel. The floor is steel. The ceiling is steel. There is no toilet, but the hole in the ground is made of steel." British resident Shaker Aamer, who remains imprisoned despite having been cleared by both the Bush and Obama administrations, said: "[I was] strapped to the bed for 24 hours except to use the toilet. The [force-feeding] tube was in 24 hours a day. We would be fed for 30-40 minutes each time, with Ensure cans, two cans, three times a day. Some of the prisoners became zombies, as if they were already dead. I dropped weight to 130 pounds. I told the doctors, 'I want to die peacefully. I want no intervention.' But they refused this." Mr Aamer's British wife and four British children, the youngest of whom he has never met, live in London. British Prime Minister David Cameron has raised his case directly with President Obama, yet Mr Aamer remains imprisoned. There is an ongoing police investigation into Mr Aamer's treatment at the hands of British and US officials. 155 men are still detained in Guantanamo Bay, 77 of who have been cleared for release. Yesterday (Saturday) marked the twelfth anniversary of the first arrival of prisoners at the detention camp. Of the 779 men known to have been held there 624 have been released. More prisoners have died than have been put on trial. In an endlessly mutating world of media forms, scholars, creative practitioners and professionals in a variety of fields need to understand the ways in which media transforms and dissolves boundaries among disciplines and creates new forms of knowledge and cultural production. The Master of Arts (M.A.) in Media Studies provides students with the conceptual and practical tools necessary to prepare themselves to engage some of the fundamental challenges and complexities of our times. The program interrogates the social, practical, economic, political and theoretical stakes of mediation considered in the widest possible sense, encompassing more traditional approaches to the study of media (print, film, photography, audio and television), in conjunction with approaches that address the massive shifts produced by the computer and internet including gaming and social media Students will benefit from an academic environment shaped not only by theorists and critics, but also by distinguished practitioners of the forms being studied. Students study and work among theorists, artists and designers and are taught by faculty-practitioners. Our courses are small, intensive, seminars taught exclusively by professors. The program is 30 credits and can be completed in threesemesters. Among the core requirements are (1) six credit hours of courses

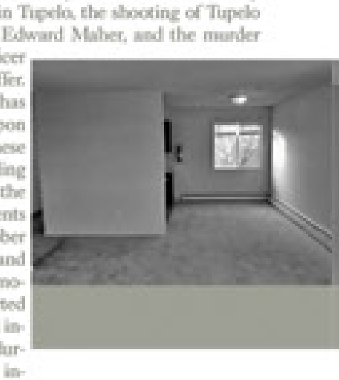
An individual who robbed a bank yesterday morning in Phoenix and who later was shot and killed in an exchange of gunfire with a Phoenix police detective has been identified as the same individual responsible for the attempted bank robbery in Atlanta, the robbery of the BancorpSouth in Tupelo, the shooting of Tupelo Police Officer Joseph Edward Maher, and the murder of Tupelo Police Officer Kevin "Gale" Stauffer. This identification has been made based upon similarities between these bank robberies, including the clothing worn by the bank robber, statements made by the bank robber during the robberies, and the robber's overall modus operandi, supported by other evidence and information collected during the course of this investigation. Additionally, cell phone records obtained via court order indicated that this individual's phone was in Atlanta, Tupelo, and Phoenix when the bank robberies were committed.



Not many people come to Fort McMurray, the notorious Alberta boom town on the edge of one of the world's largest industrial developments, to commune with the great northern woods. Most are here for the overtime, for the paid vacations, for the blue-collar jobs that pay six figures, for the work. This means that all of the bad things you've heard about Fort McMoney are true: the traffic really is murderous, there are liquor stores (many open until 2 a.m.) in every strip mall, and the place has a depressingly large population of desperately lonely guys blowing ridiculously fat paycheques on steroids, tattoos, monster trucks, and peelers. Tammy Dickinson, United States Attorney for the Western District of Missouri, announced that a Nixa, Missouri man was sentenced in federal court today for receiving and distributing child pornography over the Internet. Charles Williams, 28, of Nixa, was sentenced by U.S. District Judge Brian C. Wimes to 10 years and 10 months in federal prison without parole. Williams, who pleaded guilty on August 7, 2013, admitted that he used peer-to-peer file-sharing programs on two laptop computers to download and distribute dozens of videos and photos of child pornography over the Internet from April 9 to September 27, 2011.

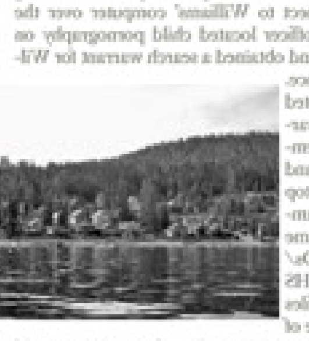
A Nixa police officer used a peer-to-peer file-sharing program to connect to Williams' computer over the Internet. The officer located child pornography on the computer and obtained a search warrant for Williams' residence. Officers executed the search warrant on September 27, 2011 and seized two laptop computers, two cameras, two videogame consoles, 115 CDs/DVDs, and a VHS tape. Among the files discovered on one of the laptop computers was a video of a 4- to 5-year-old child being raped by an adult. Williams was arrested on September 27, 2011.



Investigators conducted an examination of Williams' computers and found 52 incomplete or partially downloaded videos of child pornography, 29 saved videos of child pornography, eight videos of child pornography in the recycle bin, and 13 images of child pornography.

This case was prosecuted by Assistant U.S. Attorney Randall D. Eggert. It was investigated by the FBI and the Nixa Police Department. Last week, the Justice Department convened hearings under the Prison Rape Elimination Act to examine the prevalence of rape and sexual abuse in the nation's prisons and juvenile detention centers. As we've reported, the department has found alarming rates of abuse by staff on youngsters in custody. In a 2013 survey of more than 8,700 juveniles housed in 326 facilities across the country, 8 percent said they experienced sex abuse at the hands of the staff supervising them. Twenty percent of those who said they were victimized by staff said it happened on more than 10 occasions. But perhaps the most surprising finding: Nine out of 10 victims were males abused by female staffers. The prison rape elimination legislation first passed in 2003, but it then took the Justice Department nearly 10 years to study the issue and release rules for prisons and juvenile detention centers to implement. The South African sugar giant Illovo has 6159 hectares of sugarcane in Malawi, where it is a monopoly with an annual production of 2.8 million metric tonnes of sugar. The company denies persistent claims that it has grabbed land from smallholder farmers "Everybody loves Illovo" is the common slogan emblazoned on millions of sugar packets sold daily by Illovo Sugar (Malawi) Limited, the country's sole producer. However, for subsistence farmers at Kachibundi, Mwale, Kaziira and Kalimakhola at Dwangwa about 250 kilometres from Malawi's Capital City, Lilongwe, the slogan is a bitter-sweet fallacy. "I was dispossessed of my two and half hectares - my only source of livelihood," said farmer Joseph Mwale. "Now, I am suffering because I have to work in other people's farms to make ends meet." At 38, Mwale looks lost and confused as he narrates details of the evictions. There is fear, hatred and resignation that Malawi's justice system, and the overall structure of land administration favours the rich at the expense of the poor. With an Arctic cyclone on the way, the strong winds and rain are said to be on course to possibly loosen the ice coverage even further, thinning the water and potentially expanding the lake. This all falls within an undeniable rising of temperatures across the globe, with the Northern hemisphere finding itself particularly affected (thanks largely to an ever-depleting hole in the ozone layer). Though April featured the 9th highest snow storm on record, according to the Washington Post, May's snow cover ranked the third lowest since 1967, melting almost half of the ice caps' snowy layer. Many scientists and environmental activists and just plain sane people are heeding this as a warning to take environmental action, as an increase in sea temperature is largely considered to be contributing to melting ice caps the world over.

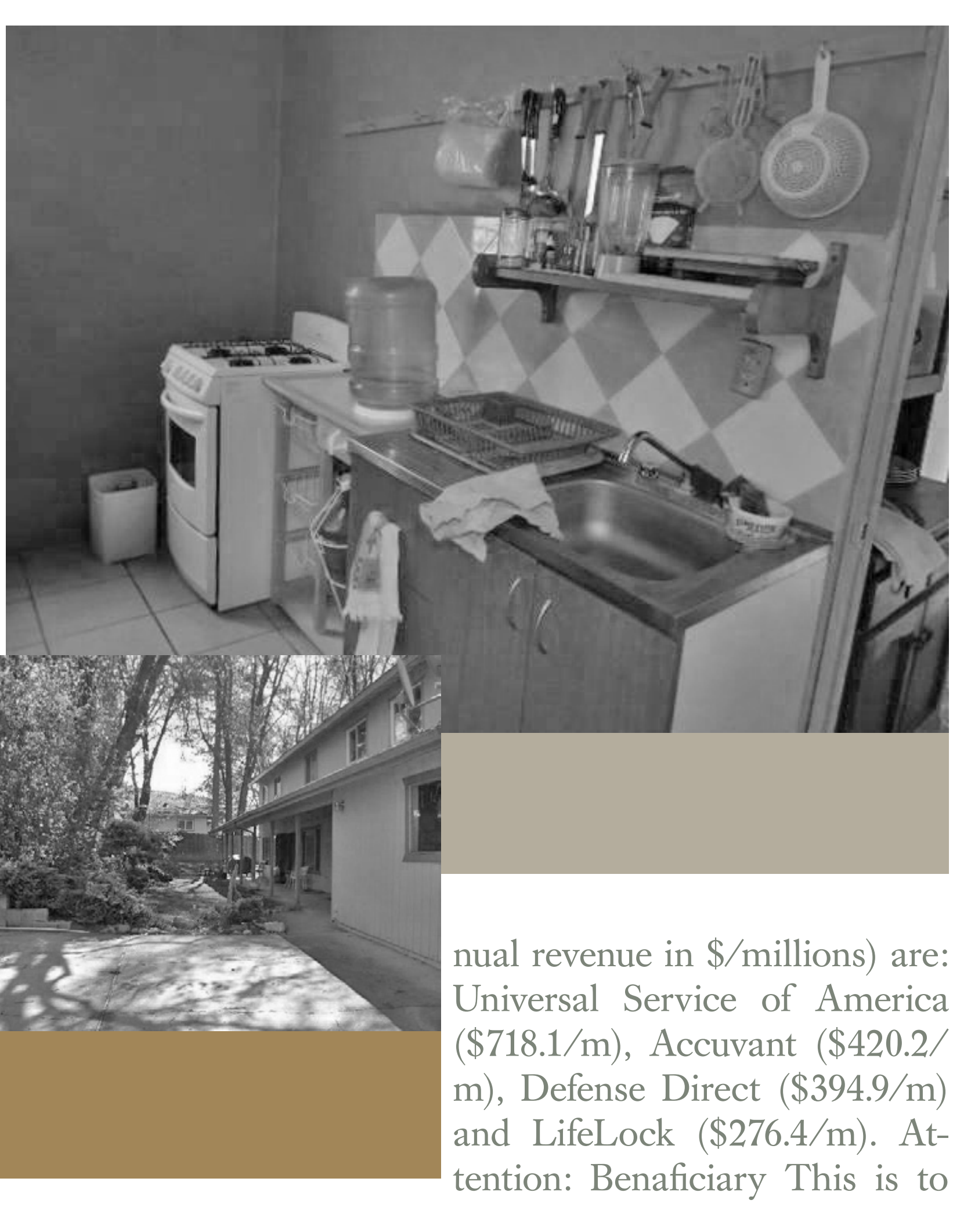
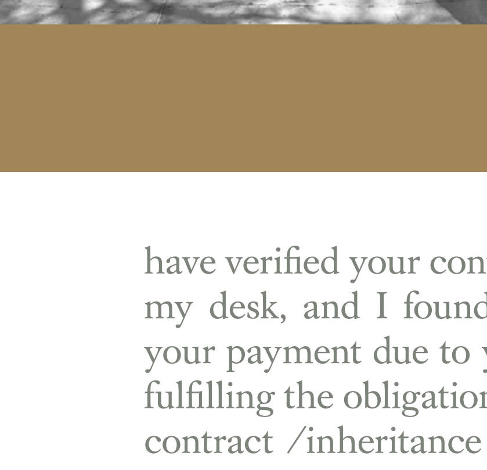
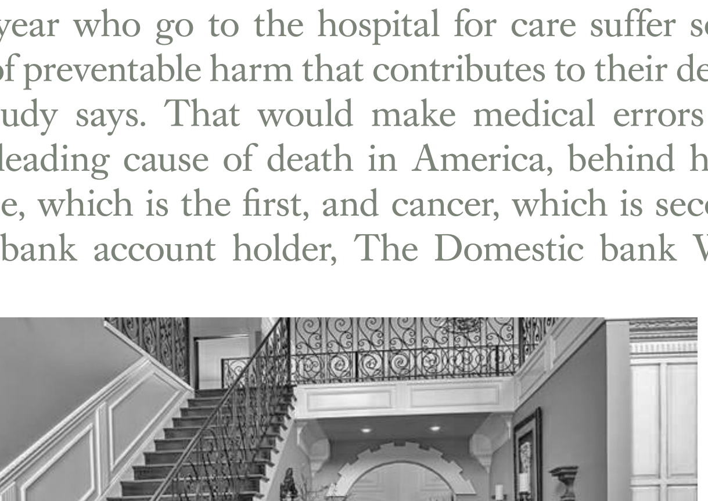
Ahmed Mohammed Kuruma, Ghana Commercial Bank Ltd The inability to grasp the pathology of our oligarchic rulers is one of our gravest faults. We have been blinded to the depravity of our ruling elite by the relentless propaganda of public relations firms that work on behalf of corporations and the rich. Compliant politicians, clueless entertainers and our vapid, corporate-funded popular culture, which holds up the rich as leaders to emulate and assures us that through diligence and hard work we can join them, keep us from seeing the truth. My late husband deposited the sum of $ 5.7 million with a bank here in Abidjan Cote D'Ivoire before his death while in service as a general in the Army in my home country, but before his death, he handed me over all the documents relating to the deposit in the bank and asked me to leave for Abidjan and arrange with a foreign partner to invest the money so that my children could have a better education and a good life. The turning of the phases occurs in Calabria where Pythagoras had his sect in Crotone. Pythagoras claimed he had lived four lives and this with his notion of metempsychosis is the structure of the film showing one phase and then turning into another phase. A famous anecdote is that Pythagoras heard the cry of his dead friend in the bark of a dog. There is a new normal in America: our government may shut down, but our wars continue. Congress may not be able to pass a budget, but the U.S. military can still launch commando raids in Libya and Somalia, the Afghan War can still be prosecuted, Italy can be garrisoned by American troops (putting the "empire" back in Rome), Africa can be used as an imperial playground (as in the late nineteenth century " scramble for Africa," but with the U.S. and China doing the scrambling this time around), and the military-industrial complex can still dominate the world's arms trade. In the halls of Congress and the Pentagon, it's business as usual, if your definition of "business" is the power and profits you get from constantly preparing for and prosecuting wars around the world. "War is a racket," General Smedley Butler famously declared in 1935, and even now it's hard to disagree with a man who had two Congressional Medals of Honor to his credit and was intimately familiar with American imperialism. Comstock's vehicle was stopped on the lawn of the university, where officers approached the car and asked Comstock to get out. When he didn't, officers fired six shots into the vehicle. Comstock died of gunshot wounds to the head and chest. Resident calls for help that end in fatal police shootings are all too common. Just last month, a Georgia resident called 911 for medical assistance , worried about whether her fianc was acting erratically because he had overdosed on diabetes medication. But when police arrived, they say the 43-year-old man lunged at them, and killed him in front of his fianc, and 8-year-old daughter. The month before that , an unarmed man was shot dead by police in North Carolina after he knocked on a resident's door seeking help with a car accident. The residents called 911 as a precautionary measure, but police hit the 24-year-old with a Taser as he approached, and then shot him. We spend our lives fighting to get people very slightly more stupid than ourselves to accept truths that the great men have always known. They have known for thousands of years that to lock a sick person into solitary confinement makes him worse. They have known for thousands of years that a poor man who is frightened of his landlord and of the police is a slave. They have known it. We know it. But do the great enlightened mass of the people know it? No. It is our task. Iran recently unveiled the Fotros, a long endurance military drone capable of carrying out air-to-ground missile attacks. The Fotros joins an astounding variety of military drones that Iran began developing in the early 1980s.

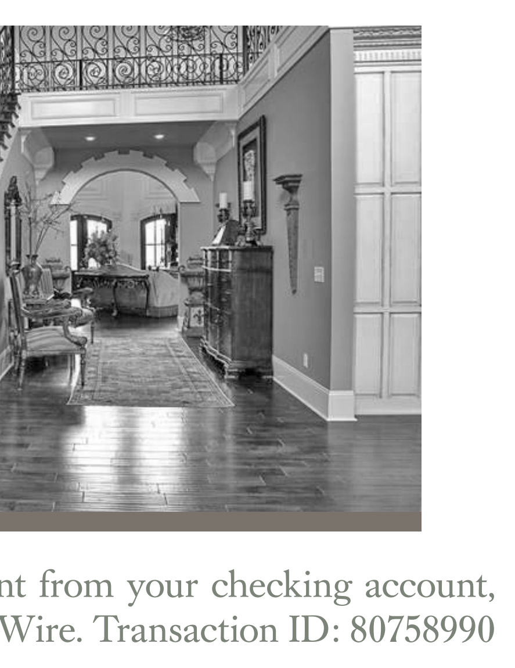
Indonesia's military, with U.S. support, launched in 1965 a yearlong campaign to ostensibly exterminate communist leaders, functionaries, party members and sympathizers in that country. By its end, the bloodbath--much of it carried out by rogue death squads and paramilitary gangs--had decimated the labor union movement along with the intellectual and artistic class, opposition parties, university student leaders, journalists, ethnic Chinese and many who just happened to be in the wrong spot at the wrong time. By some estimates, more than a million people were slaughtered. Many of the bodies were dumped into rivers, hastily buried or left on roadsides. Dear Friend, How are you doing and how is your family doing? My name is Abdullahi Wahab. I work with one of the Fidelity Banks here in Lagos, Nigeria. I would need your consent to present you as the next of kin to our late customer who died of heart attack in 2009. He was a wealthy business man who deposited a huge amount in our Bank. He died without any registered next of kin as he was long divorced and had no child.

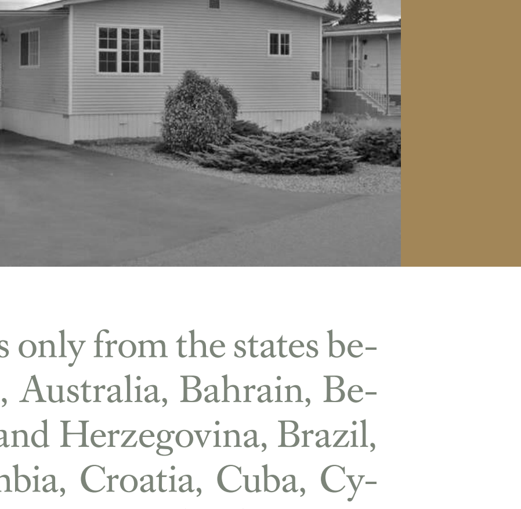


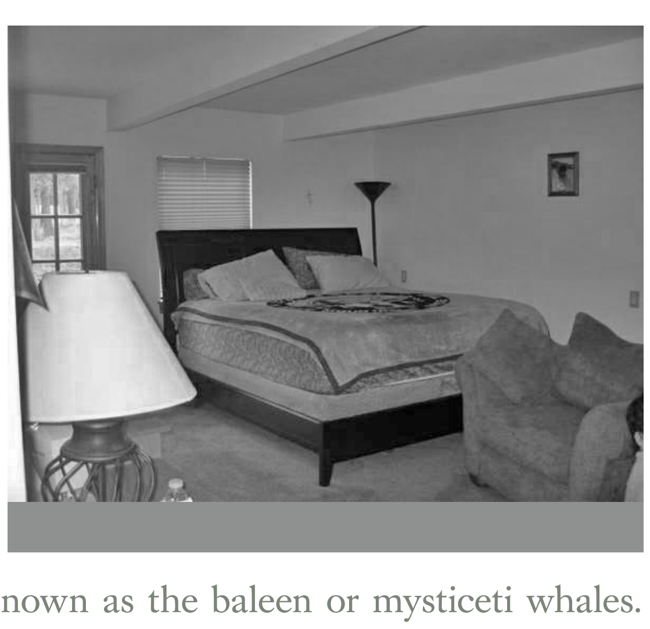


I was his account officer and have in my possession all the documents required to present you as his beneficiary next of kin. I contacted you because you have same name identity with our late client and can perfectly fit in as next of kin, We can work together to claim this fund. Please listen, this is real and goes on in Banks all over the world without people knowing. Let us utilize this opportunity because it does not come always. In 2010, the Office of Inspector General for Health and Human Services said that bad hospital care contributed to the deaths of 180,000 patients in Medicare alone in a given year. Now comes a study in the current issue of the Journal of Patient Safety that says the numbers may be much higher: between 210,000 and 440,000 patients each year who go to the hospital for care suffer some type of preventable harm that contributes to their death, the study says. That would make medical errors the third-leading cause of death in America, behind heart disease, which is the first, and cancer, which is second. The Pacific gray whale is the most frequently observed large whale along the west coast of the United States. It belongs to a group of whales known as the baleen or mysticeti whales. Their large size, paired blowholes and lack of teeth characterize this group of whales. Instead of teeth, they have numerous baleen plates suspended from their upper jaws. The frayed margins of these plates form a filter which the whales use for straining food from the ocean floor.



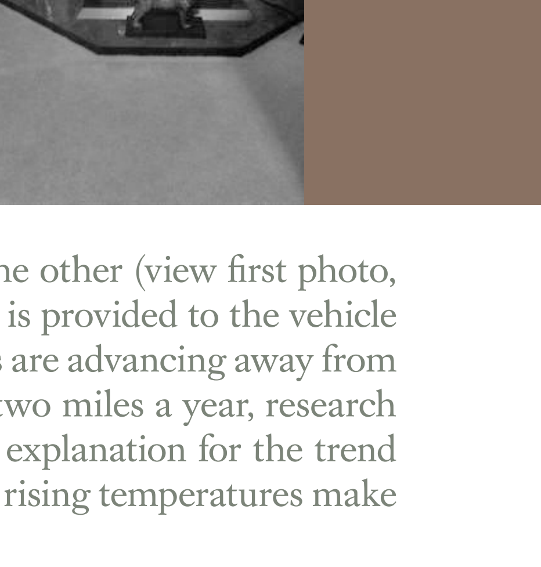






Deep in the forests of central India live the Gond tribals, an almost forgotten lot, neglected as much by the state as by mainstream media. Many cannot read or write. But thanks to a new technology, and the rapid spread of mobile phones through India, they are now picking up their cell phone and making their voice heard. Riot police fired tear gas Sunday at anti-government protesters armed with petrol bombs trying to force their way into the prime ministers complex and police headquarters, intensifying Thailands political crisis and raising fears of extended instability in the Southeast Asian nation. For most of the last week, protests remained peaceful. But on Saturday, the seventh day of protests, clashes between pro- and anti-government supporters turned violent around Ramkhamhaeng University, with at least three people killed overnight and dozens injured, according to police. Witnesses reported more shots Sunday near the university and an adjoining stadium thats been a base for government supporters.

The Bureau first broke the story of the CIA's deliberate targeting of rescuers in a February 2012 investigation for the Sunday Times. It found evidence of 11 attacks on rescuers - so-called `double-tap' strikes - in Pakistan's tribal areas between 2009 and 2011, along with a drone strike deliberately targeting a funeral, causing mass casualties. In Washington, the Arizona-based vendor American Traffic Solutions has repositioned cameras and cropped photos so that it is impossible to determine whether another object or vehicle happens to be within the radar unit's field of view. The change is important since DC hearing adjudicators have been throwing out citations whenever another vehicle was visible, creating the possibility of a spurious radar reading (view ruling). The cropping also makes it extremely difficult to use pavement lines to perform a secondary check of the speed estimate provided by the radar. Lines painted on the road for this purpose are visible in one photo, but not the other (view first photo, view second photo). No video is provided to the vehicle owner. Hundreds of crop pests are advancing away from the tropics at a rate of nearly two miles a year, research has shown. The mostly likely explanation for the trend is said to be climate change as rising temperatures make new habitats more inviting.



Pest invasions driven by global warming have serious implications for agriculture and food security, according to scientists. Already, between 10% and 16% of global crop production is lost to pests such as fungi, bacteria, viruses, insects and worms. Losses caused by fungi and fungi-like micro-organisms alone amount to enough to feed 8.5% of the global population. Agricultural pests are mainly spread by being carried on transported farm products. But the second most important factor in disseminating pests is weather. The average American family pays $6,000 a year in subsidies to big business. That's over and above our payments to the big companies for energy and food and housing and health care and all our tech devices. It's $6,000 that no family would have to pay if we truly lived in a competitive but well-regulated free-market economy. Attn: My Dear, I am Mrs Connie Dutton, I am a US citizen, 51 years Old. I reside here in Silver Springs Florida. My residential address is as follows. 7008 E Hwy 326 Silver Springs Florida 34488, United States, am thinking of relocating since I am now rich. I am one of those that took part in the Compensation in Nigeria many years ago and they refused to pay me, I had paid over US$20,000 while in the US, trying to get my payment all to no avail. So I decided to travel down to Nigeria with all my compensation documents, And I was directed to meet Barrister George Alex, who is the member of COMPENSATION AWARD COMMITTEE, and I contacted him and he explained everything to me. We were asked for our passports, which were promptly confiscated, and asked whether we wanted a private or shared room. I said shared, and with an incredulous look on his face, the hotel clerk loudly stated, “You want to share a room with Filipinos?” Wow... Taken aback, I said my friend and I would like to share a room and he nodded in agreement, relieved that we wanted our own room. Apparently there were three room categories: shared (4+ to a room) for 35 dirhams, doubles for 225 dirhams, and singles for 200 dirhams. I did not have a problem going dorm-style, but my friend preferred a private room so we requested a double.

The Filipinos were being charged a 500 dirham deposit as well as having their passports confiscated, but we were not asked to pay a deposit. With key in hand, we were directed down the hall to our left and up three floors to our room.

Driving uninsured in Mexico can lead to problematic situations arising in the event of a mishap.

In the event of a serious car accident, the drivers involved will be arrested pending investigations, even those not at fault. A complex legal process will thus ensue, and if you are not adequately insured, you will have to raise your own bail bond; and if you are judged to be at fault, you will be personally liable to third parties, including payment for any damaged road infrastructure. Having an adequate insurance policy in place will settle your third party liabilities, and better policies will also provide legal counsel and bail bond payment as part of the coverages.

In the past I've allowed several RVs park at my place. The place is a little over an acre and is great for RVs. Thing is I've had little luck with these people. One couple would come in the house, leave burners on the stove glowing red hot, leave lights on and generally act like idiots.

Another acted like they were very interested in helping with our community but after a while made it clear that they just wanted to be left alone. This is after saying everything I wanted to hear in order to move in. Of course, after a while the woman just started acting snotty and carrying an attitude. The best is a couple that said they had a school bus that was so big. When they showed up I was trying to get a fix on how big it was by asking if it would fit in a certain area. They acted like it was way smaller than it was but the thing about these people is they actually tried to get me kicked off my own place and squat while trying to turn the entire house against me. What I'm seeing is people saying how wonderful and helpful they are only to end up being narcissistic spoiled children who ends up abusing the place, filling up the garbage cans so other can't throw their trash away and generally being way more trouble than it was worth.

My advice is stay clear of RVs at all costs. Giant corporations are employing highly unethical or illegal tools of espionage against nonprofit organizations with near impunity, according to a new report by Essential Information. The report, titled Spooky Business, documents how corporations hire shady investigative firms staffed with former employees of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), National Security Agency (NSA), US military, Federal Bureau of Investigations (FBI), Secret Service and local police departments to target nonprofit organizations.

Outside of the Benito Juarez market in the city center, women sit with giant baskets of chapulines, grasshoppers that have been toasted on comals with salt, garlic, lime and/or chile. Unless youre brave enough to start poppin them like popcorn (as is the norm here), we recommend you head to one of the many nice restaurants in Oaxaca where chapulines are featured on the menu in a more palatable way. We went to Casa Crespo, where we ordered sopes with Oaxacan cheese, chapulines and a thick layer of guacamole topped with two maguey worms.

Restaurant Los Danzantes had a more sophisticated special the day we went, a steak dish with a salsa of pasilla chiles and chapulines. (sorry for crossposting. If you've been trying to closely watch recent events in Egypt, your head may be spinning. A staggering 110mm of rainfall was reported in just a one hour period resulting in the flood footage below. Trains across the city have also been stopped or delayed due to the flood waters getting in to the subway and even flooding platforms. An additional 250mm of rainfall is forecasted across the city this evening along with more spurts of short time heavy rainfall. For at least the last six years, government agents have been exploiting an AT&T database filled with the records of billions of American phone calls from as far back as 1987. The rationale behind this dragnet intrusion, codenamed Hemisphere, is to find suspicious links between people with “burner” phones (prepaid mobile phones easy to buy, use, and quickly dispose of), which are popular with drug dealers.

The secret information gleaned from this relationship with the telecommunications giant has been used to convict Americans of various crimes, all without the defendants or the courts having any idea how the feds stumbled upon them in the first place.

The program is so secret, so powerful, and so alarming that agents “are instructed to never refer to Hemisphere in any official document,” according to a recently released government PowerPoint slide. Typhoon Fitow brought winds gusting over 150kph across the southern Japanese islands on Saturday. Now the storm threatens the northern tip of Taiwan and eastern China. The worst of the storm will be overnight near Wenzhou China as Fitow comes ashore with sustained Typhoon strength winds, torrential rainfall and a 3-4 meter high storm surge.

At this time Red Typhoon warnings are in place for coastal china and the CMA has stated that Fitow is expected to make landfall on the coastal areas between central Zhejiang to northern Fujian. After landfall the storm will quickly weaken out due to the rugged terrain of eastern china and a increase in the amount of vertical wind shear will put the final blow on the storm. Even so it will continue to drop heavy rainfall and a severe risk of flooding through midweek. During the past few years, grassroots forms of dissonance have erupted everyday from Egypt and Syria to Spain, Greece, the United States, and Brazil.

People have gathered in the streets and in squares to demand to be heard and to be seen. They refuse to be silenced or erased. News media have occasionally offered them time and space to make their voices heard and faces visible. People have also mobilized digital technologies like SMS and social networking, working around and within the control of state and corporate control. They have spoken against data mining of citizens and against the financialization and militarization of everyday life for millions, but they have also spoken against corporate cooption of dissonance as Twitter or Facebook revolutions.

The winter fruit season has begun in Tunis, with a wide variety sold by vendors including at the Central Market in downtown Tunis. The first oranges are arriving from the groves, meaning Tunisians will soon be buying them by the bagful to eat and turn into fresh-squeezed juice.

The devastation wreaked by Typhoon Haiyan in the Philippines has led to heart-wrenching scenes of human suffering, with the death toll now put at over 5,000 and likely to rise still further. Yeb Sano, the head of the Philippines climate delegation, gave a moving speech at the UN climate talks in Warsaw, Poland, linking the typhoon to global warming, and then went on a hunger strike which would last, he said, ‘until we stop this madness’. Sadly, the madness looks set to continue if we recognise that the corporate media is an integral part of the problem: pulverising us with corporate advertising to encourage increased levels of consumption and planetary resource depletion, while averting our gaze from the root cause of the climate problem; namely, corporate-led global capitalism.

She also sells atole, a warm masa-based drink flavored with piloncio (unrefined cane sugar) and ingredients like cinnamon and vanilla. Atole often comes in different flavors, and tonight its arroz con leche. Over the last five years, Mr. Cohen, 48, has spent more than $300 million -- amassing a collection that includes one of Jackson Pollock's iconic drip paintings, a Manet self-portrait, a Monet waterlilies painting and other trophy works including a Degas sculpture of a young dancer and well-known Pop works like Andy Warhol's “Superman” and Roy Lichtenstein's “Popeye.” And most recently, in what may be a wink at his reputation for being one of Wall Street's predatory traders, he paid $8 million for the British artist Damien Hirst's 14-foot tiger shark, submerged in a tank of formaldehyde.

“He is a significant collector,” said Donald B. Marron, the chairman of Lightyear Capital and former chief executive of PaineWebber, who is also a trustee at the Museum of Modern Art and has seen Mr. Cohen's collection. “It's a very personal collection, too. He is emotionally involved, has a good eye and knows the works in their context. Those are the ingredients that make a good collector.”

I don't expect any real improvement. Sounds like its mostly even more subsidies to health-care and pharmaceutical companies with trivial assistance to patients. The vast, corrupt medical-insurance bureaucracy will likely lose many cushy jobs though. Genetic engineering has made proprietary control possible over the seeds on which the world's food supply depends. Two modified traits account for practically all of the genetically modified crops grown in the world today. One involves insect resistance. The other, more disturbing modification involves insensitivity to glyphosate-based herbicides (plant-killing chemicals). Often known as Roundup after the best-selling Monsanto product of that name, glyphosate poisons everything in its path except plants genetically modified to resist it. Glyphosate-based herbicides are now the most commonly used herbicides in the world. Glyphosate is an essential partner to the GMOs that are the principal business of the burgeoning biotech industry. Glyphosate is a "broad-spectrum" herbicide that destroys indiscriminately, not by killing unwanted plants directly but by tying up access to critical nutrients. A bug-out bag is a portable kit that contains the items one would require to survive for seventy-two hours when evacuating from a disaster. The focus is on evacuation, rather than long-term survival, distinguishing the bug-out bag from a survival kit, a boating or aviation emergency kit, or a fixed-site disaster supplies kit. The kits are also popular in the survivalism subculture. The term "bug-out bag" is related to, and possibly derived from, the "bail-out bag" emergency kit many military aviators carry. In the United States, the term refers to the Korean War practice of the U.S. Army designating alternate defensive positions, in the event that the unit(s) had to displace. They were directed to "bug-out" when being overrun was imminent. The concept passed into wide usage among other military and law enforcement personnel, though the "bail-out bag" is as likely to include emergency gear for going into an emergency situation as for escaping an emergency. Other names for such a bag are a "72-hour kit", a "grab bag", a "battle box", a "Personal Emergency Relocation Kits" (PERK), a "go bag" or a "GOOD bag" (Get Out Of Dodge). If you were hoping for more Internet companies to come out and reveal more details about government surveillance, like Google did on Tuesday, we have bad news for you. Asked on Wednesday about how it handles requests stemming from the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act (FISA), Facebook said it could not disclose anything "We are prevented by law from talking about anything related to FISA, including processes," said Jodi Seth, a Facebook spokesperson. Titling the show "Il Palazzo Enciclopedico" after Auriti's unrealized model, Gioni and his team selected an eclectic group of artists, psychologists, mystics and more whose work resonates with Auriti's desire to create a total image of the world. In many ways, the exhibition can be seen asa response to the exhaustive overabundance of information available onthe internet. As Gioni pointedly asks in his essay, "what is the point of creating an image of the world when the world itself has become increasingly like an image?" Bush Taxi is possible between most cities, every day in major cities, periodically for the more remote ones. The total price for long distances will be a little higher than by bus, and comfort and security are significantly lower. Drivers are often trying to maximize the number of people in the car so one can expect an intimate experience with the local population. However, bush taxis do offer flexibility that the bus systems do not; you can always find a taxi fairly quickly (at the autogarres). For trips of 3 hours (approx 150km) or less, a bush taxi might be a more flexible and reasonable option. Unlike the buses though, prices MUST be discussed in advance. Cost depends on the destination and price of gas. Ask other passengers what they are paying and always try to pay on arrival, although the latter is not always possible. A decent option for travelers not trying to go on the cheap is to buy up all the seats in a bush taxi, or at least all the seats in one row. It not only avoids having to wait until the taxi driver has filled up every seat, but it's much more comfortable than being crammed in with lots of sweaty people! If you do this, you'll typically need to give the driver some money up front so he can buy petrol along the way. Photographic stylist assists photographers by styling products, mannequins, models, laydowns and lifestyle photographic images. The stylist will also source and setup props and other necessary materials, which will form the subject of photo shoots. Photographic styling involves collecting the necessary materials and props before the shoot from various suppliers, arranging objects in the desired fashion and setting up special effects, if any, e.g. turf, wind or rain. One of the oldest natural dyes used for textiles is indigo, a blue that has captured the artist and maker's imagination for thousands of years. For centuries, it was the world's only blue textile dye. Working in silks and fine cottons, an adjunct faculty, continues the practice of this culturally and artistically important dyeing tradition using natural indigo and small vat batches. Scarves, jackets and small bags use Japanese textile techniques such as shibori, sashiko, boro and sakiori. Around the world, bees are dying at alarming rates. In June, 50,000 bumble bees were killed in a Target parking lot after neonic pesticides were sprayed on nearby trees -- the largest bumble bee die-off ever recorded. Then, in July, 37 million honey bees died on a single farm in Ontario. This crisis is escalating at an alarming rate. Last winter, beekeepers from Texas to California consistently reported bee die-offs between 50-70 percent of their bees -- the worst year since the global bee die off known as Colony Collapse Disorder was recognized. Without immediate action to save bees -- which pollinate two-thirds of our food crops -- everything from almonds to strawberries could disappear from supermarket shelves. New science is pointing to the world's most popular class of pesticides called neonicotinoids (or neonics), made by giant chemical companies Bayer and Syngenta, as the key factor in this global crisis.

The swift and brutal verdict read out by Army Col. Judge Denise Lind in sentencing Pfc. Bradley Manning to 35 years in prison means we have become a nation run by gangsters. It signals the inversion of our moral and legal order, the death of an independent media, and the open and flagrant misuse of the law to prevent any oversight or investigation of official abuses of power, including war crimes. The passivity of most of the nation's citizens--the most spied upon, monitored and controlled population in human history--to the judicial lynching of Manning means they will be next. There are no institutional mechanisms left to halt the shredding of our most fundamental civil liberties, including habeas corpus and due process, or to prevent pre-emptive war, the assassination of U.S. citizens by the government and the complete obliteration of privacy. "Starvation affects every part of your body and will make you weak and vulnerable to infections. The function of all your cells and organs will decline. Your skin may become fragile and you are likely to develop uncomfortable sores, particularly in the mouth and bony pressure points. You may feel very cold and experience constipation and/or diarrhea. Lack of food is likely to affect your ability to think clearly. You may become depressed or withdrawn. Eventually, starvation will start to damage your major organs which can then fail completely. Heart failure and sudden disturbance of the heart beat are the leading cause of death in starvation. Your choice to refuse food can result in death. If you are well nourished when you began to refuse food and you take in adequate fluid, you are unlikely to die from starvation for at least six to eight weeks." So reads a "Pelican Bay State Prison Hunger Strike Informational Sheet" revised in June 2013 and distributed to California hunger strike participants protesting long-term segregation in cells the size of a bathroom, for average terms of 6.8 years, with limited opportunities to demonstrate a willingness and potential to reintegrate in the prison general population and by extension, society . The hunger strike is now eight weeks in, with 40 on hunger strike all 58 days as of yesterday. An additional 88 hunger strikers are still on hunger strike. Topics in this digest: 1. The 2006 episode "Marge and Homer Turn a Couple Play", for example, contains a triple dose of secret mathematics. The storyline revolves around Marge and Homer's efforts to help baseball star Buck Mitchell and his wife Tabitha Vixx, who are experiencing marital difficulties. The episode climaxes with Tabitha appearing on the Jumbo Vision screen at the Springfield stadium, where she publicly proclaims her love for Buck. More important, just before she appears on the screen, it displays a question that asks the baseball fans in the crowd to guess the attendance. The screen displays three multiple choice options; 8,128, 8,208 and 8,191. These digits might seem arbitrary and innocuous, but in fact they represent a perfect number, a narcissistic number and a Mersenne prime. Hi! You are in open forest, with a deep valley to one side. After years of living on the road, seeing the country up close and personal, hiking thousands of miles in beautiful places, enjoying solitude, Manhattan seems a nightmare. Trash everywhere, noise, traffic, pedestrians cheek by jowl, too much light at night. Precious little green space. The city used to be a center of working class militancy, radical politics, and popular art, literature, and music. But today, it is mainly a haven for the world's rich, who exploit the (increasingly immigrant) working class that serves them. It seems just a monument to shopping, dining, and deal-making. Everybody is hustling, all day, every day. The posada is traditionally a neighborhood celebration, in which children selected to portray Mary and Joseph, along with shepards, and attending families, stop at various homes in their neighborhood looking for shelter.

It is a musical event, with both visitors, and recipients singing out the call and response. Ritually turned down at many homes, the children finally reach the home of the padrinos (or godparents) for the event where they will be received with song and prayer. Following the prayers a feast of tamales and coffee is served and a piata, filled with fruits and nuts, is attacked and broken by the children. In light of recent developments in the case of Mohammad Halabiyeh, a child who was brutally tortured during interrogation in 2010, Addameer Prisoner Support and Human Rights Association reconfirms the Occupation's policy to deny genuine investigations into cases where the Israeli army has violated the fundamental rights of Palestinian prisoners. Mohammad was 16 years old when he was arrested by the Israeli Border Police on 6 February 2010 from his hometown of Abu Dis, just outside of Jerusalem. During the arrest, Mohammad broke his leg and required urgent medical treatment. Instead of providing him with the necessary care, the Israeli Border Police held him for five days in interrogation and tortured him, including beating him, kicking him on his injured leg and threatening him with sexual abuse. When he was taken to a hospital, the interrogators continued to abuse Mohammad, punching him in the face, taping his mouth shut and beating him with an iron bar. While many commentators mourn the vanishing sovereignty of the state in the face of financial markets and globalisation, and declare our times to be post-democratic, their nostalgic image of the glorious days of democracy and sovereignty as bulwarks against capitalism is profoundly problematic. We consider it therefore not only necessary to discuss the question of the state and democracy again, but we could even say that -- there must be a structural theory of the State-capital-society relationship and a political strategy adequate to the structural character of these interrelations. 1. Artists seemingly love their practice so much that it's assumed they will be delighted with any opportunity they get to gift it to others. Increasingly, artists find themselves shoe-horned (through financial necessity or the arts PR machine) into making art or delivering projects, the efficacy of which are measured in terms of their instrumental powers - how well they serve the needs of others (achieve social improvement such as regeneration; uplift the lives of disadvantaged people; fill the 'arts gap' in school curricula; contribute to the economy). Had they been taxed to pay for stimulus and bailout, no need would have arisen for borrowing or austerity. You are in a valley in the forest beside a stream tumbling along a rocky bed. You can hardly turn on the television or open a newspaper without hearing about the nation's impressive, much celebrated housing recovery. Home prices are rising! New construction has started! The crisis is over! Yet beneath the fanfare, a whole new get-rich-quick scheme is brewing. Over the last year and a half, Wall Street hedge funds and private equity firms have quietly amassed an unprecedented rental empire, snapping up Queen Anne Victorians in Atlanta, brick-faced bungalows in Chicago, Spanish revivals in Phoenix. In total, these deep-pocketed investors have bought more than 200,000 cheap, mostly foreclosed houses in cities hardest hit by the economic meltdown. Wall Street's foreclosure crisis, which began in late 2007 and forced more than 10 million people from their homes, has created a paradoxical problem. Millions of evicted Americans need a safe place to live, even as millions of vacant, bank-owned houses are blighting neighborhoods and spurring a rise in crime. Lucky for us, Wall Street has devised a solution: It's going to rent these foreclosed houses back to us. In the process, it's devised a new form of securitization that could cause this whole plan to blow up -- again. Since the buying frenzy began, no company has picked up more houses than the Blackstone Group, the largest private equity firm in the world. Using a subsidiary company, Invitation Homes, Blackstone has grabbed houses at foreclosure auctions, through local brokers, and in bulk purchases directly from banks the same way a regular person might stock up on toilet paper from Costco. Drink your chocolate, eat your dessert, then smash your plate afterwards. And you dont have to clean up. The tradition is said to have its roots in pre-Colombian tradition which warranted that all of ones personal belongings should be destroyed every 52 years. The entire city is one big festival during Christmas, with an open air market in the already bustling zocalo, with food stands, carnival rides, and artisan crafts. David, (so I have to buy the latest computer and software all because your inept web-designers don't know how to accommodate previous models); it's still bullshit and you're likely just a paid-pawn but that's no excuse: this State has denied me any assistance for twenty years and now it demands that I pay an "arts-tax"!? Inspired by the Saudi Wahabist interpretation of Islam - ascetic, extreme, exclusive and violent - Al Qaeda feeds on despair rather than hope. It operates like the mafia, growing rich by terrifying wealthy Arabs into paying protection money. It transformed traditional Somali society by killing local imams or forcing them to abandon their traditional Sufi practices and Somali customs. For example, traditionally Somali women dressed in colourful flowing robes and played prominent social roles. Now they are dressed head to toe in black, dark brown or green and excluded from decision-making and debate. But in places of extreme injustice you can see why such a millenarian religion might flourish. Somalia has had no government since the late 1980s and has been abandoned by the world from 1995 when the Americans fled and refused to fund the UN force too. Since then the south has been at war, there has been no state, little education or development, permanent insecurity and starvation. Millions have fled and a vast refugee camp, Dadaab, with almost a million inhabitants, has grown up on the Kenyan border. The theme of Everyday Life presents creative trends observed in Asian arts in the recent years, and it further focuses on the "everyday-ness" in daily experiences, and as well as the aesthetic development with the return to everyday life. Furthermore, the theme of Everyday Life also embodies another layer of meaning, as it anticipates to investigate and reflect on the emerging irregular social conventions and systems and to regain a genuine sense of self-esteem and consideration for the essence of life in a social setting. Asia is blessed with richly diverse geography, ethnicity, culture, and history, and as artistic expressions seem to become more homogeneous due to globalization, the boundaries from one place to another and from private realms to public are undoubtedly becoming more ambiguous. As cross-territorial and cross-cultural impacts become tightly intertwined, various issues of homogenization and lifes transitions are challenging our comprehensions for Asia and also our customary thoughts. A strong storm system will bring wind, rain, and mountain snow to the Pacific Northwest and Northern Rockies through Tuesday. Wintry weather will move into the Northern Plains on Monday, and will spread into the Upper Midwest through the mid-week. Widespread heavy snowfall, dangerously cold wind chills, and drifting snow are possible for this area. On July 26 the Maasai community who live in Narasha, Naivasha, Kenya were attacked and forcefully evicted from their homes. Two media reports capture the eviction and the meeting with government officials afterwards. The houses were burnt ostensibly in execution of a court order issued on Thursday to evict the current tenants on a disputed piece of land. The still-unidentified 19-year-old victim was being written up for a traffic violation in Laguna Hills when Officer Juan Tavera arrived and allegedly reached into the backseat and secretly pepper sprayed the teen's pizza. The teen and his friends got sick after consuming the pizza later that day. Already this year, cities as disparate as Miami and Tampa to Palo Alto have passed various ordinances making it virtually illegal to be homeless inside city limits. It is well-known that the Black Panther Party's [BPP] rallying call was "serve the people, body and soul." According to sociologist Alondra Nelson, the phrase was far more than a rhetorical flourish. In fact, Panther co-founder Bobby Seale made sure it was taken literally when, in the spring of 1970, he ordered all party chapters to create free breakfast programs for children and health centers to serve the medically needy. It was a tall order, born of the belief that theory and practice need to work in tandem, with tangible benefits being given to under-resourced communities. The clinics were called People's Free Medical Centers [PFMC] and eventually were established in 13 cities across the country, from Cleveland to New Haven, Connecticut; Winston-Salem, North Carolina; and Los Angeles. One facility, in Portland, Oregon, offered dental as well as medical care; all relied on donated supplies and volunteer labor. Women, Nelson writes, were the backbone of the effort - not surprising, considering that approximately 60 percent of BPP members were female. There are some keys on the ground here. On Monday night, a grossly overcrowded Haitian sail freighter capsized about 15 nautical miles from Staniel Cay, in the Bahamas, throwing more than 140 people into the water. The U.S. Coast Guard says at least 30 of the migrants died. The rest were found clinging to the hull of the ship when rescue crews arrived at the scene. Earlier this month, along a rocky and barren island near the Puerto Rican coast, Coast Guard officials say a group of immigrant smugglers ferrying 18 Haitians by boat from the Dominican Republic to Puerto Rico forced all their passengers overboard and ordered them to swim to Mona Island as the smugglers then sped away.

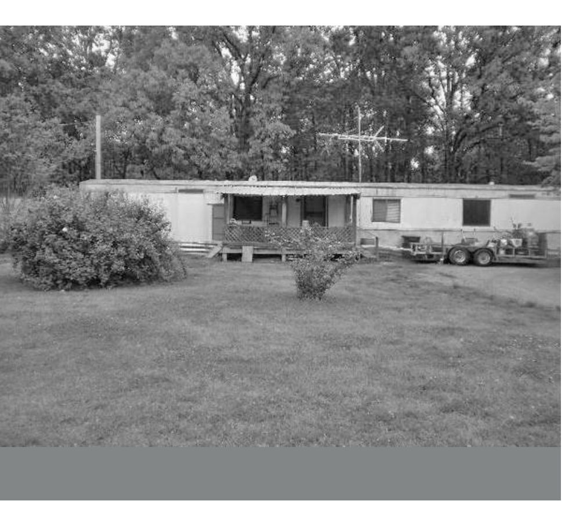
There's a black hole in a galaxy 22 million light-years away that's incredibly bright and energetic. Astronomers naturally assumed it was a supermassive black hole. But new observations show it's actually quite tiny -- throwing many conceptions of what we thought we knew about these things completely out the window. Black holes come in two types, possibly three. Or four. We've got our supermassive black hole variety, the kind you might find at a galaxy's core. As its name would suggest, these things are absolutely huge, weighing in at about a billion times the mass of our Sun. At the other side of the spectrum are stellar mass black holes, objects with a mass comparable to that of our Sun. Then there's mid-sized black holes, or intermediate mass black holes (IMBH), at about 10 to 100 times the mass of our Sun. Astronomers also think there are "middleweight" black holes out there, weighing in anywhere from 20,000 to 90,000 times the sun's mass -- but more observations are need to confirm these findings. Small black holes are known for their high-energy X-rays, while larger black holes give off low-energy X-rays. Also known as hard and soft X-rays, these emissions are caused not by the black hole itself, but by the rapidly accelerating mass of matter swirling around it. So, the lower the X-ray energy, the bigger the black hole. [Aircraft] Like their forbearers in the UFW, these workers work and live in deplorable conditions. Sakuma Brothers Farms provides the workers with what the company calls "cabins" but what really amount to shacks. These small dwellings form labor camps where the workers and their families live in crowded, dirty conditions.



The shacks are small, incredibly hot during the day, and cold at night. There is substandard furniture and mattresses, bedbugs are a recurring problem in the camps, and bathrooms are located in a different area. Up to half of what workers make is deducted from their paychecks to pay off the debt they owe for the housing. Sometimes, there is barely enough money left over to pay for the gas they need to drive to work. Sakuma Brothers Farms is proof that company towns are not a thing of the past.

Similar to business practices of companies that ran company towns years ago, the work itself is divided by ethnicity. The piece-rate workers are mostly from Oaxaca, Mexico. Many of them don't speak Spanish but instead speak indigenous Mixteco and Triqui languages. Most supervisors are mestizo, the main crop supervisors are white, and the executives are either Japanese or white.

This stratification is nothing new in the agricultural industry but it is intentional. It is not uncommon for the indigenous piece-rate workers to be derisively called "oaxaquita," "indio," and "estupido." This abuse and intimidation compelled the workers to root a number of their demands in respect and dignity. The strike, after all, is about much more than wages. As a post-communist subject, I cannot but see Internet as a communal apartment of Stalin era: no privacy, everybody spies on everybody else, always present line for common areas such as the toilet or the kitchen.

Or I can think of it as a giant garbage site for the information society, with everybody dumping their used products of intellectual labor and nobody cleaning up. Or as a new, Mass Panopticum (which was already realized in communist societies) - complete transparency, everybody can track everybody else. If you want to take over a nation, then first take over its airwaves. Broadcast your messages and interdict the enemy's ability to broadcast theirs. When the U.S. attacked Iraq in 1991, or NATO bombed Serbia in 1999, among the first targets destroyed were TV and radio stations. When there is a military coup in Africa, the first buildings the rebels usually grab are the radio and TV studios. So it is illuminating that the United States Special Operations

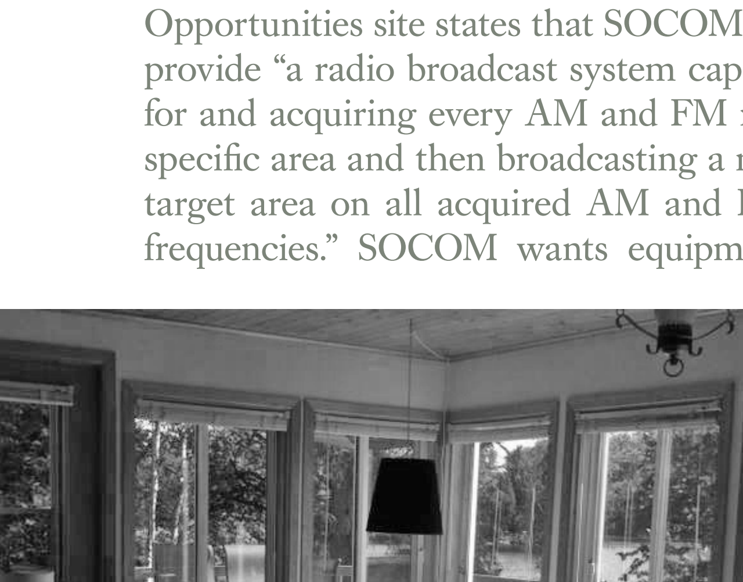
Command (USSOCOM), the organization that oversees America's elite special forces, is quietly searching for equipment that will effectively give it control over every FM and AM radio station in an area. The short, innocuous-sounding announcement on the Federal Business Opportunities site states that SOCOM seeks vendors to provide "a radio broadcast system capable of searching for and acquiring every AM and FM radio station in a specific area and then broadcasting a message(s) in the target area on all acquired AM and FM radio station frequencies." SOCOM wants equipment that is both lightweight and sophisticated enough to detect and broadcast over multiple frequencies simultaneously.



And SOCOM wants it fast. The equipment must be at least Technology Readiness Level 8, a Pentagon measure of technological maturity that means that it is fully developed, tested and ready for use. 1. A 2004 study in California put the cost per employee at $2,103. For the year 2012, Walmart's pretax U.S. income was almost $18.7 billion. That's over $14,000 per U.S. Walmart employee. For the year 2012, the four Walton family members made over $20 billion from their investments. That's over $15,000 per Walmart employee. When Aruna arrived at the factory, about 40 miles from her home, she found a vast facility where close to 1,000 girls, many in their teens, lived 10 or 15 to a room. From 8 a.m. till 10 p.m. every day, including weekends, she fed and monitored rusty machines that spun raw cotton into yarn. Her bosses often woke her in the middle of the night because, she recalls, there was "always some sort of work, 24 hours a day."

Aruna made just a quarter of the $105 a month she was promised, about $0.84 a day. The listing below includes all legislation received by Municipal Code since the last update (printed or electronic) to the Code of Ordinances.

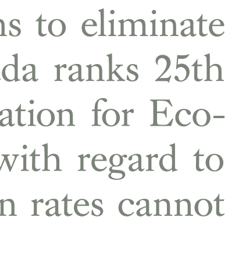
The fires were ignited from slash and burn agriculture across the island of Sumatra, a cheap and easy way to clear out land for farming. More and more often though these fires begin to burn out of control due to the dry climate during this time of year. The result is wild fires burning out of control and a wide swaths of smoke flowing down wind carried by the albeit light but still southwesterly winds. With the monsoon season in full force currently the winds are not expected to shift in the near future and the air quality will stay the same in the coming weeks pending the fires subsiding.

We, the Afghan Peace Volunteers, according to the 19th Article of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights which states the right to freedom of expression, we want Bradley Manning to be free!

Despite repeated promises from federal and provincial governments to address the issue -- including a 1989 commitment by all Parliamentarians to eliminate child poverty by the year 2000 -- Canada ranks 25th among the 30 countries in the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development with regard to child poverty. Recent modest declines in rates cannot hide the fact that over a million children in Canada still live in poverty.



More troubling, however, is the reality facing Indigenous children in Canada. Based on data from the 2006 census, this study found that the average child poverty rate for all children in Canada is 17%, while the average child poverty rate for all Indigenous children is more than twice that figure, at 40%. Presidents hired advertising agencies to devise `marketing' schemes to sell their wars. The visible idiocy of these schemes fed on the psychological trauma fear-mongering and regular mass slaughters in the `national interest' caused the purposely-misinformed populace. The Cold War was perpetuated by successive administrations because the contrived bogeyman of `communism' had been so effectively sold in support of Western economic predation.

By putting a `political' patina on imperial wars the hoax / fallacy of political morality became a fundamental part of the American story. And the irony of cynical demagogues selling botched foreign policy as `they hate us for our freedoms' meets its match in dim corporate-state fascists selling totalitarian surveillance to `protect' us from the consequences of botched foreign policy. Good day, Please, I want to introduce myself and this business opportunity to you. My name is Mr. Adams Rees, A banker here in London UK, I will need your assistance in this business transaction. I would like you to stand as the next of kin to my deceased customer, who died in a plane crash in January 31st 2000 plane crash. He was a wealthy man who made a deposit of $ 16.2 Million (Sixteen Million Two Hundred Thousand United States Dollars.) with our bank. He died without any registered next of kin and as such the funds now have an open beneficiary mandate. If you are interested please do let me have your information so that I can give you comprehensive details on what we are to do. Please, again, note that I am a family man, I have a wife and children. I send you this mail not without a measure of fear as to what the consequences, but I know within me that nothing ventured is nothing gained and that success and riches never come easy or on a platter of gold. A secret filming of night shifts involving up to 11 miles of walking - where an undercover worker was expected to collect orders every 33 seconds. It comes as the company employs 15,000 extra staff to cater for Christmas. Amazon said in a statement worker safety was its “number one priority”. Undercover reporter Adam Littler, 23, got an agency job at Amazon’s Swansea warehouse. He took a hidden camera inside for BBC Panorama to record what happened on his shifts. He was employed as a “picker”, collecting orders from 800,000 sq ft of storage. A handset told him what to collect and put on his trolley. It allotted him a set number of seconds to find each product and counted down. If he made a mistake the scanner beeped. “We are machines, we are robots, we plug our scanner in, we’re holding it, but we might as well be plugging it into ourselves”, he said. We set out early the next morning, driving south through heavy traffic past unfinished strip malls and gated textile factories. Getting to the village -- a tea-growing area of 71,000 residents, with settlements clustered around 56 different estates -- requires a fearless driver managing a rickety stick shift on tight hairpin turns and a healthy tolerance for the 2,000-foot elevation gain. We repeatedly stop the car to let our guide vomit. When we arrive, we see the tea blooming in neon-green tufts straight out of Dr. Seuss. Most of the tea workers are from the lower castes and make about $3 per day; it costs a month’s salary just to outfit a child with books and a uniform for school. “We can’t give all our children food and schooling, so we sacrifice one child’s future for the others,” one mother tells me. “In these jobs, girls are preferred, so girls go.” The timing of a warning depends on conditions when a warning can be issued and received. After receiving a warning, a person may have a few seconds or in some cases significantly longer to take action, but if the epicenter is very close there may be cases in which strong tremors come ahead of any warning. The Earthquake Early Warning is set up to enable people to mitigate damage from an earthquake: people may protect themselves at home, at the office, and near cliffs. Railway workers may use this warning to slow down trains, and factory workers may use it to stop assembly lines prior to an earthquake It was the hottest week of the year. All Fadel Jaber wanted was some water for his family. But Fadel lives in the occupied West Bank, where the Israeli government has redirected water pipes to provide swimming pools for Jewish settlers and empty faucets for Palestinians like Fadel. When the Israeli forces dragged Fadel off for taking water, his heartbroken five-year-old son Khaled could be heard screaming “baba, baba!” as his dad was torn away. This is daily life for Palestinians living under the brutal fist of martial law where their land and water has been stolen by settlers and they have no basic human rights. But after years of violence and hopelessness, a movement is growing in Palestine -- a nonviolent resistance seeking the same thing that all Israelis already have: freedom, dignity and a state of their own. If we actually had a functioning judicial system and an independent press, Manning would have been a witness for the prosecution against the war criminals he helped expose. He would not have been headed, bound and shackled, to the military prison at Fort Leavenworth, Kan. His testimony would have ensured that those who waged illegal war, tortured, lied to the public, monitored our electronic communications and ordered the gunning down of unarmed civilians in Iraq, Afghanistan, Pakistan and Yemen were sent to Fort Leavenworth’s cells. If we had a functioning judiciary the hundreds of rapes and murders Manning made public would be investigated. The officials and generals who lied to us when they said they did not keep a record of civilian dead would be held to account for the 109,032 “violent deaths” in Iraq, including those of 66,081 civilians. The pilots in the “Collateral Murder” video, which showed the helicopter attack on unarmed civilians in Baghdad that left nine dead, including two Reuters journalists, would be court-martialed. The exhibition Steichen | Warhol: Picturing Fame pairs Steichen’s photographs with those of Andy Warhol, the Pop artist whose work some 50 years later reflected and transformed the conventions set down by Steichen. Steichen’s photographs captured the public’s imagination in the United States and shaped the visual language of celebrity-worship that Warhol would simultaneously glorify and undermine many years later, said exhibition curator Elliot Reichert. Steichen established himself as the premier portrait and fashion photographer in the 1920s and 1930s in the United States.

Shooting in sharp focus with dramatic lighting before stark backgrounds, Steichen distilled the essential characteristics of his subjects’ personas. The parade of performers, writers and public figures who posed before his camera is staggering: Fay Wray, Eugene O’Neill, Carl Sandburg and Greta Garbo are just a few whose portraits This file photo taken on September 15, 2005 shows, then commissioner from presidential commission on good goverment (PCGG) Ricardo Abcede (R) and other goverment officials. As most labor and working-class historians are aware, King was assassinated in Memphis, Tennessee while lending his support to black sanitation workers striking for better labor conditions, pay, and union recognition. These very same demands have been at the heart of recent battles waged by low-wage retail and fast-food workers. Wal-Mart employees “ many of them reliant on public assistance to make ends meet “ have led protests for living wages, full-time hours, and workplace rights. On “Black Friday,” which is a major post-Thanksgiving shopping day, over 110 of them were arrested for civil disobedience at about 1,500 locations around the nation. In early December, their fellow workers in the fast food industry staged a one-day walkout in 100 U.S. cities to publicize demands for an hourly minimum wage of 15 dollars. This growing “Fight for 15” is part of a wave of mobilizations that have been occurring since at least 2012. The only difference between soft sleeper and hard sleeper is that in hard sleeper you are in a compartment having 6 beds with 3 levels rather than 4 beds with 2 levels and there’s not always a door on the compartment. This means that in hard sleeper the sound - and much worse - the smoke, drifts in from outside. You are also right near the fluorescent lights and speakers which pipe (mostly annoying) music throughout the day. It is also a pain having to get in and out of bed if you need to go to the toilet during the night. Soft sleepers have a couple of benefits. The first little benefit is that people with soft sleeper tickets have their own waiting area, away from the masses. It doesn’t mean though that it is any less crowded.The lounge has nice big comfortable sofas. From the lounge area you can go directly to the platforms when your train is scheduled to arrive. The regular gates are usually a mad rush of people trying to get through. In the ever evolving market of new media and technology platforms, users are constantly challenged by how to use these to their best advantage. Whether it is sharing information, developing careers, building corporate audiences, or trailblazing forward to shape creative paths for communication, our panelists will provide insights on the challenges and successes that have shaped their own careers and experiences, as well as creating opportunities for tomorrow. The frigid temperatures that remain entrenched over the central and eastern U.S. will begin to affect the southern states through the rest of the week. Winter Weather Advisories are posted for a portions of Texas for snow and freezing rain, while Hard Freeze Warnings extend from the Southeast states into northern Florida. Jets loaded with vacationers always take the picturesque turn over Waikiki beach as they enter Honolulu airspace and prepare for landing. To the tourist, the tall hotel buildings that line the Waikiki waterfront promise them air conditioned rooms, fancy restaurants, hula dancers, and other exotic trappings. The aloha they have heard so much about engulfs their minds as the plane softly lands and the vast Pacific welcomes them. The pleasant breeze and the incessant beautiful sun bathes them as they prepare for a promised good time in paradise. But the tourists will at once be bothered and surprised to see so many homeless people living in parks, on the beaches, lingering by bus stops. The tourist, especially the ones who are used to living away from such atrocities of modern America, feels cheated because this is not the Hawaii they imagined. They wanted the aloha spirit, the latest cocktail drinks, and lush rainforests. According to Jessie Schiewe, writing for the now defunct Honolulu Weekly on March 9, 2011, “13,886 people experienced homelessness and/or received shelter services in Hawaii,” the majority being in Honolulu. Around 74 percent of people using shelters are unemployed, with 23 percent of those having a college education and almost half a high school education or GED. It is instructive to learn what Hawaii’s government has planned to address the rising numbers of homeless people on the islands. In July 2013 Hawaii’s state legislature approved a $100,000 per year for a three-year pilot project to get some homeless people off the islands. The idea is that a significant percentage of them are from the mainland, but this is an argument that bears no actual verification from the homeless themselves. Local residents pick up drinking water from a tanker truck at West Virginia State University in Charleston, West Virginia January 10. Every time your gas water heater roars to life in your basement, remember the West Virginians. Hundreds of thousands of residents no longer have drinkable water. The same chemical (MCHM) that contaminated the Elk River is also used for fracking for oil and natural gas in communities around the country. The tragedy waits to repeat itself in a watershed near you. Every time you click on your gas stove, remember the forty-seven citizens killed by a fire caused by a train derailment in Lac Megantic, Quebec, Canada. When you hear the subtle hiss of that blue flame, remember, people have been poisoned for your natural gas. Stare into the flame for a moment longer and imagine the miles of underground seams filled with fracking fluids that need only a tectonic shift to crack open a fissure into the aquifers above them. The substratum of our continent is now laced with accidents just waiting to happen.

But the adjunct problem is not about PhDs struggling to find jobs or people being forced to give up their dreams. The adjunct problem is about the continued exploitation of a large, growing and diverse group of highly educated and dedicated college teachers who have been asked to settle for less pay (sometimes as little as $21,000 a year for full-time work) because the institutions they work for have callously calculated that they can get away with it. The adjunct problem is institutional, not personal, and its affects reach deep into our culture and society. Hasedera, like so many temples, burned down in 1607 and all its records were destroyed so the date of its origin is unknown. What is known is that it was a Shingon temple until 1451 when it switched to Soto Zen. It is a branch tempele of Tainei-ji which is located on the north Yamaguchi coast near Nagato. The statue of Kannon, carved out of a single piece of wood and The original wardrobe malfunction might have originated more than 250 years ago, at the hands of a 20-something Frenchman named Jean-Honor Fragonard. Fragonard was only beginning to discover his niche as a portrayer of thinly veiled eroticism when he painted an errant body part peeking out from his subject’s frilly 18th-century dress. The resulting work of art, Blind Man’s Buff, and its companion, The See-Saw, comprised a pair of paintings that must have delighted his patron with symbolic depictions of seduction. The two works have been reunited for the first time in 25 years in a special focus exhibition at the Toledo Museum of Art titled Love and Play: A Pair of Paintings by Fragonard, on view Jan. 24 May 4, 2014 in Gallery 28. It’s the first in the Museum’s ENCOUNTERS series, concentrated shows and installations that pair exceptional works of art in new or interesting It could easily be the case that unbearable conflict might produce depression or self-hatred. You could call depression a failure of the imagination, a self-sabotaging refusal to consider a creative solution or look forward. Such conflicts might also produce art, the work itself representing the impossibility. Several thousand people in southern Manitoba have been told that a pipeline explosion could mean they’ll be without natural gas service for up to several days as temperatures hover close to -20 C. “As far as the temperature is concerned, the words ‘polar vortex’ is what they’re saying,” Myron Dyck, a spokesman for the Town of Niverville, said on Saturday. The explosion and fire at a TransCanada Pipelines valve site near St. Pierre-Jolys happened early Saturday morning, sending a massive fireball into the dark sky. The flames were out by Saturday afternoon and there were no reported injuries. But Manitoba Hydro said that in order to repair the line, TransCanada shut off its supply of natural gas for several municipalities affecting approximately 4,000 people He knew that when he kissed this girl, and forever wed his unutterable visions to her perishable breath, his mind would never romp again like the mind of God. So he waited, listening for a moment longer to the tuning-fork that had been struck upon a star. Then he kissed her. At his lips-touch she blossomed for him like a flower and the incarnation was complete. Legal ivory -- ivory that predates the 1989 global ban on international ivory trade brought on by world-wide outrage over skyrocketing elephant poaching -- is often indistinguishable from illegal ivory. Worse yet, obtaining documentation in New York to prove the “legality” of ivory just requires some simple paperwork. Make no mistake -- having a legal market for old ivory provides a front for the laundering of new ivory from recently-killed elephants. One of the reasons New York State is a major destination for ivory is because of its lax laws. A 2008 survey found 11,300 ivory products for sale in Manhattan alone, making New York a top destination for ivory. Thankfully, state lawmakers are considering instituting an immediate moratorium on the sale of all ivory in New York. If it happens, the law will come not a moment too soon given Africa’s massive recent increase in elephant poaching plaguing Africa’s elephants. It only takes a light covering of seawater to render land infertile, so Mohamed Saeed keeps a close watch on the sea as it advances year after year towards his two-hectare plot of land. The young farmer, whose clover field lies just 400 metres from Egypt’s northern coast, reckons he has less than a decade before his field - and livelihood - submerges beneath the sea. But even before that, his crops will wither and die as seawater infiltrates the local aquifer. The process has already begun, he says, clutching a handful of white-caked soil. “The land has become sick,” says Saeed. “The soil is saline, the irrigation water is saline, and we have to use a lot of fertilisers to grow anything on it.” “The soil is saline, the irrigation water is saline, and we have to use a lot of fertilisers to grow anything on it.” Spread over 25,000 kilometres, the densely populated Nile Delta is the breadbasket of Egypt, accounting for two-thirds of the country’s agricultural production and home to 40 million people. Its northern flank, running 240 kilometres from Alexandria to Port Said, is one of the most vulnerable coastlines in the world, facing the triple threat of coastal erosion, saltwater infiltration, and rising sea levels. Strong communication skills are essential, along with an attention to detail, the ability to complete projects on-time and a willingness to interact with the public via a social media interface during events within diverse communities. Candidates should be current students or recent graduates with their own technology, cellphones, etc. These internships will include a variety of responsibilities which may include site-visits for upcoming project development, coordinating with lead contacts at host venues, coproducing public participatory projects online, and publicity for print, broadcast and online, and perhaps more. Basic responsibilities may also include organization skills, research for public projects, as well as other day-to-day administrative duties.

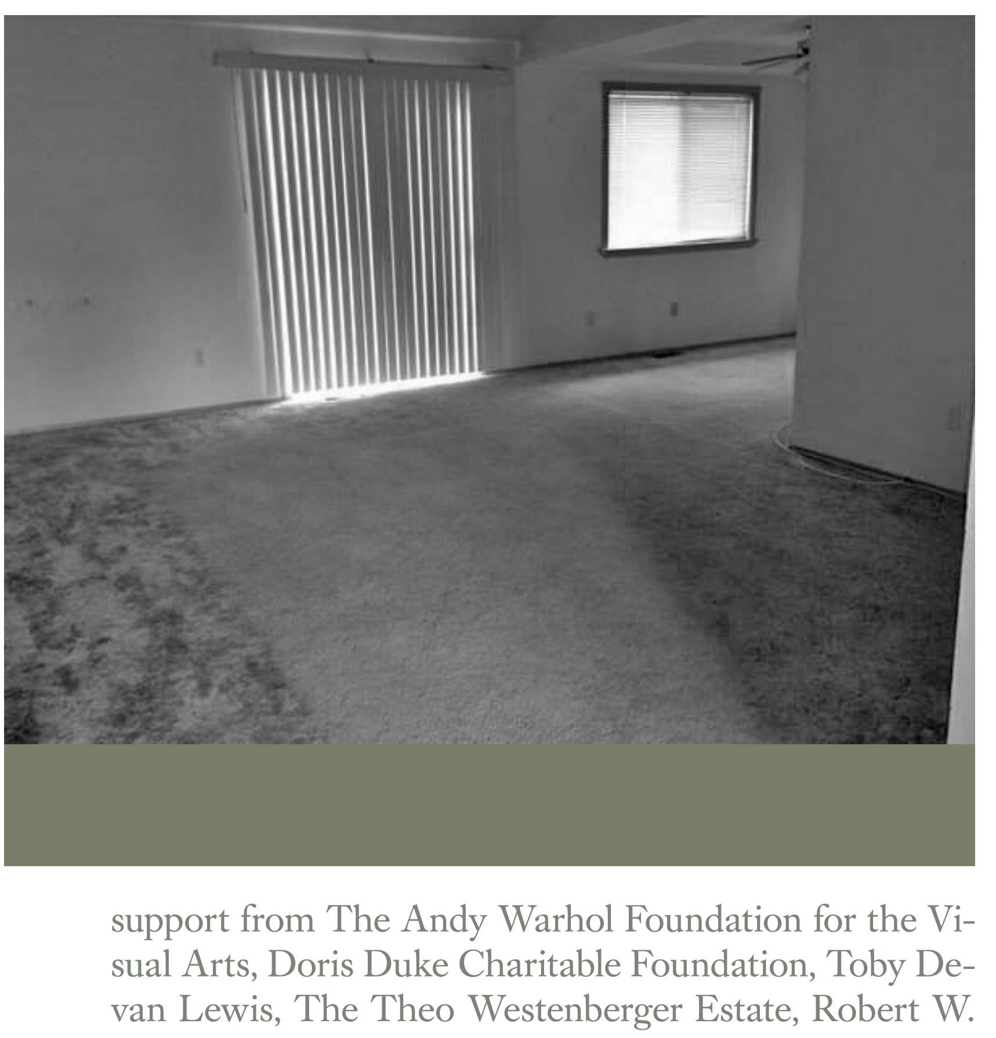
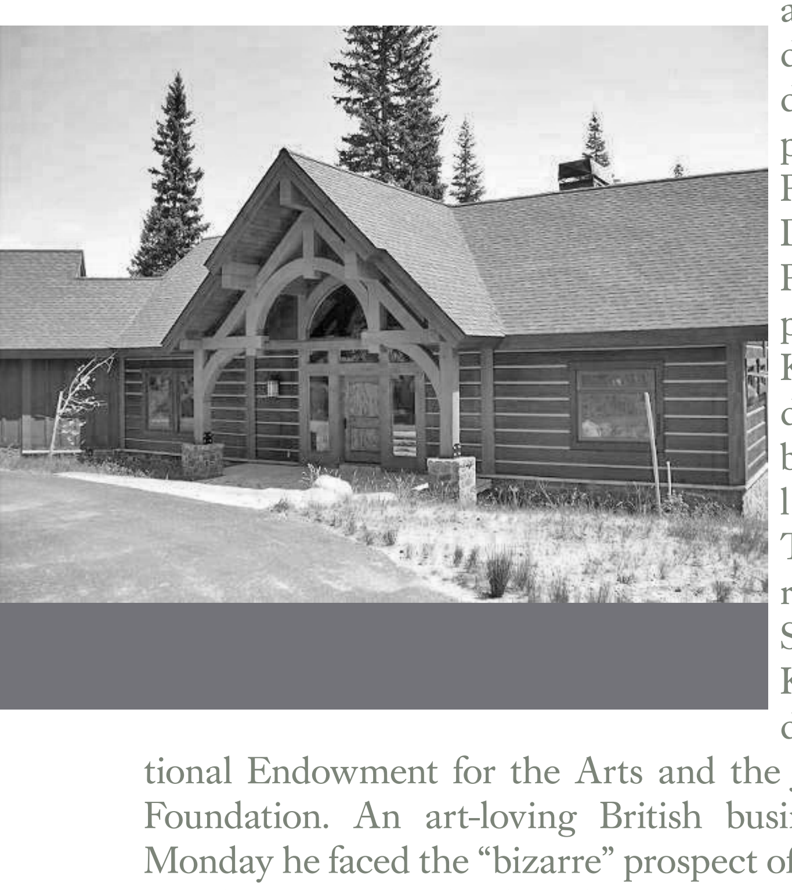
An art-loving British businessman said Monday he faced the “bizarre” prospect of seeing a treasured painting that he thought was by Marc Chagall destroyed because it has been judged to be a fake. Martin Lang spent 100,000 (121,000 euros, $163,000) on what he believed was an original work by Russian-born artist Chagall in 1992. For a BBC TV programme on art forgeries, the painting was tested by experts and sent to the Chagall Committee in Paris for verification. But Lang, a 63-year-old property developer, was shocked when the committee deemed it to be a fake and told the BBC that under French law it must be destroyed. The committee has kept the painting -- a nude said to date from 1909-1910 -- in Paris and will meet on Tuesday to discuss its fate. Lang blasted the committee’s decision as “draconian”. “I was confused because I couldn’t see the logic of destroying something which is possible evidence if forgers were ever caught First public display of two magnificent paintings by Arcimboldo opens at Fundacion Juan March Crystal Bridges Museum of American Art presents a diverse group of temporary exhibitions Nahmad Contemporary opens an exhibition exploring the relationship between proto Arte Povera artists.





Translation has long been perceived not as an art as much as a necessity, an imperfect implement deployed in the interest of communication across some barrier. But even where loyalty to the original holds sway, it is never as simple as a one-to-one correlation. Translation requires creative transformation. In academe, translation is tendered as a process that enables permeability across a tangle of disciplines and agendas. It is discussed against the backdrop of exoticism and the colonial enterprise while the field of Translation Studies focuses not on standards of verisimilitude but on an increasingly fluid paradigm of mediation, a multifaceted and interdisciplinary act manifested in a multitude of synonyms such as emulating, adapting, rewriting, and recreating. In recent decades, translation has jumped its banks. It has moved beyond the ideal of taut correlations into the realm of shared impulses and multiple authors, where circles of interpretation and misinterpretation overlap and converge. In this global commons, where information flows nonstop, translation acts as an interlocutor of hybrid texts and a mediator for unstable states. It is a passage instead of a place, a process and not a result. The Rafflesia arnoldii is the largest individual flower on the planet, measuring in with a diameter up to 3 feet and weighing up to 20 lbs. It’s pretty at first glance, but its fowl odor (rotting flesh) and parasitic nature quickly squash the fairy tale. Still, it’s a special thing when you see it, as the flower blooms and withers within a matter of days. Your best chance to see it is at Gunung Gading National Park. Imagine that you could wander unseen through a city, sneaking into houses and offices of your choosing at any time, day or night. Imagine that, once inside, you could observe everything happening, unnoticed by others -- from the combinations used to secure bank safes to the clandestine rendezvous of lovers. Imagine also that you have the ability to silently record everybody&rsquo;s actions, whether they are at work or play without leaving a trace. Such omniscience could, of course, make you rich, but perhaps more important, it could make you very powerful. 1. At this time, interested individuals should take the Arts Grants Administrator exam. About 20 people took part in a demonstration outside Menard’s walls, banging pots and pans and chanting protest slogans. Some demonstrators said they were able to hear inmates calling out to them from their cells to ask “for due process.” Inside, officials say, a single prisoner continues to refuse food a month after his hunger strike began. Started by more than a dozen inmates at the Administrative Detention Unit at Menard Correctional Center in southern Illinois, the strikers have taken a stand against what they call “inhumane” conditions in the unit, where prisoners are isolated from the general population and locked in small cells for 23 hours a day, with time out for showers and five hours of recreation a week.

At the beginning of this week, officials reported that many of the strikers who started the protest were being monitored in Menard’s medical wing. And for good reason: After 30 days without food, the risks of serious health issues are high. Brian Nelson, Prisoner Rights Coordinator at the Uptown People’s Law Center, knows that firsthand. Back in 2000, while in administrative detention in Tamms Correctional Center---the state’s super-max prison, which closed in January 2013---he took part in a similar protest that lasted around 30 days. At this stage in a hunger strike, he says, “You’re able to read, you’re able to write, you’re able to think,” but “your body starts eating itself, and you feel it. You know it’s eating itself.” Corrections officials, however, say they have “incontrovertible proof” that some participants in the hunger strike had been receiving food from other prisoners before they were transferred to the health care unit.

"We're not going to release how we know this," says Tom Shaer, director of communications at the Illinois Department of Corrections, but "their weight loss is not consistent with hunger striking." Nelson strongly denies that claim.

The strike is just the latest in a series of protests against conditions in solitary confinement taking place throughout the country. An active weather pattern will continue over the Pacific Northwest and Northern Rockies on Monday, bringing heavy precipitation and strong winds to the region. Additional rainfall will cause rises in many rivers, lowland flooding and increased threat of landslides. Heavy snowfall is expected at higher elevations. Rain on top of snow in the mountains will continue the threat for avalanches.

Americans have funny notions about foreign aid. Recent polls show that, on average, we believe 28 percent of the federal budget is eaten up by it, and that, in a time of austerity, this gigantic bite of the budget should be cut back to 10 percent. In actual fact, barely 1 percent of the federal budget goes to foreign aid of any kind. In this case, however, truth is at least as strange as fiction. Consider that the top recipient of U.S. foreign aid over the past three decades isn't some impoverished land filled with starving kids, but a wealthy nation with a per-head gross domestic product on par with the European Union average, and higher than that of Italy, Spain, or South Korea.

Consider also that this top recipient of such aid--nearly all of it military since 2008--has been busily engaged in what looks like a 19^th-style colonization project. In the late 1940s, our beneficiary expelled some 700,000 indigenous people from the land it was claiming. In 1967, our client seized some contiguous pieces of real estate and ever since has been colonizing these territories with nearly 650,000 of its own people. It has divided the conquered lands with myriad checkpoints and roads accessible only to the colonizers and is building a 440-mile wall around (and cutting into) the conquered territory, creating a geography of control that violates international law "Ethnic cleansing" is a harsh term, but apt for a situation in which people are driven out of their homes and lands because they are not of the right tribe.

Though many will balk at leveling this charge against Israel--for that country is, of course, the top recipient of American aid and especially military largesse--who would hesitate to use the term if, in a mirror-image world, all of this were being inflicted on Israeli Jews? 1. The hatch arrived as two pieces of wood without any fastenings of any sort. I am unsure as to what a fully functional hatch should look like. Is it possible to post some photos of a fully operational hatch?

2. The boat arrived with two types of fasteners in a ziplock bag. I believe some of these fasteners are designed to keep the keel in a "locked down" position. Is it possible to post some photos of the keel locked in the downward position? 3. Out of casual interest, why does the keel need to be locked when in the downward position? I would have thought that 300lb and gravity would effectively do that. Then again, I suppose if the boat turned turtle, the situation would become extremely dire so maybe that's the answer.

I know you were expecting to hear back from me much earlier but I didn't want to get back to you empty-handed. I finally found the perfect stock for you and I am confident that it will make you some serious profit. Remember the one I told you about in November of last year right?

You did very well on it and I think this PRFC stock will do the same for your portfolio again. I have to let you know though that I'm not the only one who found out about PRFC today. A few of my colleagues are aware as well and they are telling their friends and family about it so I must advise you to move fast if you want to buy it. I think it's trading at just around 15 cents right now, if you wait too long it might be at 30 or even higher and at that time I won't be able to safely advise you to buy it. You can buy as many shares as you can first thing at market open on Friday or worst case scenario buy it on Monday but move fast. I know you don't care about what the company does because you know I've done all the due diligence for you already but PRFC is actually amazing and I think it will do much better than even the one I told you about a few months ago. One of the company's divisions offers mobile software solutions for the gaming industry. The mobile apps allow customers to play lottery and other games of chance and skill on their smartphones. The software is extremely advanced and could be the backbone of all mobile casinos in the future. It is expected that the US will legalize online gaming in the near future and this could catapult PRFC to new highs however even without that the company's software is extremely valuable in the rest of the world and could become extremely profitable.

Something big is definitely brewing at the company. I heard something about buy out rumors but I don't have all the details yet I will keep you posted over the coming days or weeks. Anyway I won't bore you with much more blabber, but if you have a second do check out PRFC. By the way I will be expecting a nice gift from you once you make fat bank on this one and a nice dinner with the wives is in order. It's been too long since we last spent a good evening over a bottle of wine. I was going to call you to tell you about PRFC but I figured youre probably asleep now with those crazy shifts you've been working.

We appreciate our dodger and full canvas cover for the companionway hatch. We live in Oregon, where such prevention tends to be automatic. We leave the dodger up, when on a mooring. I'm not sure you really mean that the hatch needs to be 100% watertight. That would require extreme measures and really wouldn't serve much of a purpose, if you employed a dodger and hatch cover. Also, at night, you can simply open a screened portlight or two (for cross ventilation. Our hatch is two-piece. My plan is to make a screened top piece to employ. We also have a forward hatch for additional light and ventilation. Dave Eviction notice, Hereby we inform you that you will be foreclosed Antonio Rosario, Jim Rosenau, Jon Stich, Peter Tonningsen and DJ Whelan. Christopher J. White, age 29, of Whitehall, New York, pled guilty today in Albany before United States District Judge Mae A. D'Agostino to receipt of child pornography, announced United States Attorney Richard S. Hartunian; Joseph D'Amico, Superintendent of the New York State Police; and Andrew Vale, Special Agent in Charge, Federal Bureau of Investigation.

White, who was detained pending his sentencing, faces at least 15 years of imprisonment and up to 40 years of imprisonment. As part of his guilty plea, White admitted that, following his 2010 attempted sexual abuse in the first degree conviction in Saratoga County Court, he used the Internet to search for, receive, and view images of child pornography. Sentencing is scheduled for June 9, 2014, in Albany, New York. This case was investigated by the New York State Police and the Federal Bureau of Investigation and is being prosecuted by Assistant United States Attorney Jeffrey C. Coffman.

From 1 March 2014 onwards, the Hermitage Amsterdam will offer visitors a glimpse of the long-lost civilizations along the legendary Silk Road. Until 5 September 2014, the exhibition Expedition Silk Road will present treasures from the Hermitage: 250 exceptionally beautiful objects, such as murals, Buddhas, precious silks, silver, glass, gold, and terracotta, excavated by Russian expeditions in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries.

Visitors will follow in the footsteps of the explorers who mapped the routes of kings and merchants, and of the Buddhist monks who went before them. Like the caravans that crossed this inhospitable region ages ago, passing through kingdoms, monasteries, and oases, visitors will travel the trade routes from west to east or east to west, and discover spectacular ancient treasures along the way. "We most impact the power concentrations of the Regime by cultivating an understanding of where our energy comes from, at all scales, where it goes, and most importantly, where our attention is engaged: on which signals, on which flows. In the process of paying close attention to the highly mediated, amplified, signals of the Regime, directed by its protocols, we confirm our reciprocal role as its optimized energy source. By (re)turning our creative attentions to the granular sources of the Regime's energy -- to the individual Others around us -- and spending our life-energy, our lifetime in less mediated Dialogue with them via our own protocols, we immediately begin draining the Regime of its primary power source. We preserve those limited life-energies for more local and immediate encounters. It is within these energized encounters, these Dialogues between the Self and the Other, where transformation, (r)evolution, and change are ultimately sited.

As a media artist, it is this generation of localized protocols that is perhaps the most effective strategy to mitigate or even reverse the slide toward hierarchic centralization [and consequent surveillance!!]. It should be some solace that though we cannot escape the ultimate destiny of Life on the planet: in the mean while we may choose to go with the flow of dialogue, embracing change in the Self and in the Other, here, now."
